Read the following descriptions of after-school clubs for young people. For each question(11-15) choose the book that would be suitable for each teenager.

Good Will Drama Club

Our drama club gives young ones a chance to let their creativity shine. We put on three plays a year – during winter holidays, in early spring and during the summer break. We also offer scriptwriting tutorials for those who wish to develop their writing skills. Classes are held twice a week.

Biking Club

We are here for those who enjoy biking. Our facilities are a dream come true, with most amazing ramps. We can provide for beginners who want to learn how to handle basic biking techniques but also for the more advanced bikers who want to take their hobby a step further. We are open Wednesdays to Fridays.

Computer Club

We will teach you about so many things you can do on your computer – things you have no idea are possible: how to use apps for school projects and how to get even more creative in the process. We will also teach you how to edit photos and short films. We meet on Mondays.

Graphic Books and Comics Club

We will give you a chance to play and experiment with art. Creating your very own graphic book will improve both your drawing and your storytelling. There is one condition, though. You must be good at drawing!

Dance to Stay Fit Club

We will teach you the most modern forms of dance. This will not only keep you entertained but it will also keep you... in shape! You will have so much fun while learning new moves! We meet on Mondays.

Talkative trees

They might seem like they are indifferent to what is going on around them, standing tall and silent, but trees actually communicate with each other. Forest ecologists have been studying how trees use fungi – organisms that include mushrooms but can also be microscopic, like dust – to share resources and send chemical messages to other trees. If you are a mother you will naturally recognize your children and try to protect and support them. Trees do the same thing by making room for their baby-trees, which they recognize as their own. However, when the tree close to them is not related to them, they will be competitive and try to get as much light and food from the environment, without caring if the other trees suffer. Are you surprised by how smart trees can be? There's more! Acacia trees can warn each other of danger. When enemy animals like antelopes start to munch on its leaves, the tree starts to produce a substance in higher levels than normal. This substance is toxic to animals. The Acacia tree which is being attacked by an antelope will then start producing a cloud of gas that travels through the air. When it reaches other trees, these too will know they need to start producing the substance that is bad for antelopes. Next time you are hiking in a forest, try to look more closely. You might actually catch a few trees having a conversation!

26. Fungi are used by trees to

- A) kill other plants B) send substances to each other C) make sounds

27. If two trees are part of the same family, they will

- A) compete with each other B) support each other C) suffocate each other

28. A mother will

- A) create space for its baby tree B) put its branches around its baby tree C) not know which tree is their baby

29. Antelopes are the enemies of acacia trees because

- A) they eat their leaves B) they poison the trees C) they sleep under the trees

30. Acacia trees produce a special gas in order to

- A) distract enemies B) send messages to other trees C) communicate with humans
